<https://helda.helsinki.fi>

Statistics and State-istics : exclusion categories in the population census (Belgium, 1846-1930)

Louckx, Kaat

2014

Louckx , K & Vanderstraeten , R 2014 , ' Statistics and State-istics : exclusion categories in the population census (Belgium, 1846-1930) ' , Sociological Review , vol. 62 , no. 3 , pp. 530-546 . <https://doi.org/10.1111/1467-954X.12178>

<http://hdl.handle.net/10138/158192>

<https://doi.org/10.1111/1467-954X.12178>

submittedVersion

Downloaded from Helda, University of Helsinki institutional repository.

This is an electronic reprint of the original article.

This reprint may differ from the original in pagination and typographic detail.

Please cite the original version.

Toppan Best-set Premedia Limited
Journal Code: SORE	Proofreader: Elsie
Article No: SORE12182	Delivery date: 07 Jul 2014
Page Extent: 3

Notes on contributors

Berna Zengin Arslan received her Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of California Santa Cruz in 2009. She was awarded a two-year Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Fellowship for the period of 2010–2012 and with this fellowship, she acted as a visiting assistant professor at the City University of New York Graduate Center. Her research areas are Sociology of Religion, Sociology of Science and Technology and Gender Studies. Currently, she is an Assistant Professor at Ozyegin University, Istanbul. e-mail: berna_zengin@yahoo.com

Bridget Byrne is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology and also a member of CoDE (the ESRC-funded centre on the Dynamics of Ethnicity and inequality, based at the universities of Manchester and Glasgow). Her book White Lives: the interplay of 'race', class and gender (Routledge) won the BSA Philip Abrams Award in 2006. Her next book Making citizens: public rituals and personal journeys to citizenship will be published by Palgrave in 2014. Bridget has published articles in Sociology, Ethnic and Racial Studies, Citizenship Studies, The British Journal of the Sociology of Education, Feminist Theory, and Thirdspace. The research presented in this article was funded by an ESRC grant on 'School choice and local place'. Bridget also had a Leverhulme Fellowship on 'Citizenship ceremonies: narration of nation?'. Bridget is currently writing the book All in the mix: race, class and school choice (MUP). E-mail: bridget.byrne@manchester.ac.uk

David Calnitsky is a doctoral student in sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His research interests include political economy, economic sociology, poverty, and basic income. His doctoral dissertation examines the empirical effects of a basic income experiment that took place in a small Manitoba town in the 1970s. e-mail: calnitsky@wisc.edu

Anna Feigenbaum is a Lecturer in media and politics at Bournemouth University and has held fellow positions at the Rutgers Center for Historical Analysis and the London School of Economics and Political Science. She is co-author of the book Protest Camps with Fabian Frenzel and Patrick

McCurdy (Zed, 2013) and is currently working on a political history of tear gas (forthcoming Verso, 2015). Her work on social justice and technology has been published in a range of academic and media outlets, including South Atlantic Quarterly, Feminist Media Studies, The Guardian and New Internationalist magazine. She is a Fellow and Associate of the Higher Education Academy and is a trained facilitator and community educator, running group development workshops for academics, non-profit organizations and local initiatives. She can be found on twitter at @drfigtree. e-mail: afeigenbaum@bournemouth.ac.uk

Fabian Frenzel is postdoctoral Marie Skłodowska-Curie Fellow at the University of Potsdam and lecturer in organization at the School of Management, University of Leicester. His primary research interest is in the political implications of travel, tourism and mobilities. A particular focus has been the study of social movements' and political activists' mobility. Frenzel has developed two distinct empirical research areas, the study of slum tourism and the study of protest camps in his own work and in collaboration with colleges in two vibrant research networks. Fabian Frenzel is co-author of the monograph Protest Camps (Zed Books, 2013) and co-editor of the edited collections Slum Tourism, Poverty, Power, Ethics (Routledge, 2012) and Geographies of Inequality (Routledge 2014). e-mail: ff48@leicester.ac.uk

Paul Johnson is Anniversary Reader in Sociology at the University of York. His primary research interests are in law, human rights and sexual orientation. His most recent publications include Homosexuality and the European Court of Human Rights (Routledge, 2012) and Law, Religion and Homosexuality (Routledge, 2014). e-mail: paul.johnson@york.ac.uk

Kaat Louckx is a researcher in the Department of Sociology at both Ghent University and Antwerp University (Belgium). Her research interests include conceptual history, political sociology and governmentality. She is currently completing her Ph.D. dissertation on the politics of membership and belonging, and more particularly, on the étatisation of belonging in the nineteenth and early-twentieth century. e-mail: Kaat.Louckx@UGent.be

Patrick McCurdy is an Associate Professor in the Department Communication, University of Ottawa, Canada. His research focuses on the media practices of social movement actors in an age of digital media. Patrick's work has been published in several academic journals and he is the co-author of Protest Camps (with Anna Feigenbaum and Fabian Frenzel; Zed, 2013). He also recently co-edited two books Beyond WikiLeaks: Implications for the Future of Communications, Journalism and Society (eds with Arne Hintz and Benedetta Brevini, Palgrave, 2013) and Mediation and Protest Movements (eds with Bart Cammaerts and Alice Mattoni, Intellect, 2013). e-mail: pmccurdy@uOttawa.ca

Maurizio Meloni is a social theorist working on the history and political implications of the life-sciences, neuroscience and epigenetics in particular. He has published in Journals such as Frontiers in Human Neuroscience, Sociology, Economy and Society, Subjectivity, Telos, History of the Human

Notes on contributors

1 Sciences, New Genetics and Society, in the edited volume Neurocultures
2 (2011) and in a recent collection on neuroscience and political theory
3 (Routledge, 2012). He is currently preparing a book on biology and social 4 theory in a postgenomic age. After two consecutive Marie Curie Fellowships
5 at the University of Nottingham, he is now affiliated (as Honorary Senior 6 Lecturer) with the College of Social Sciences and International Studies 7 University of Exeter, UK. For 2014–2015 he is a Fellow of the Institute for 8 Advanced Study (School of Social Science), Princeton, USA, where he has 9 been awarded a fellowship for his research on sociology and epigenetics.
10 e-mail: m.meloni@exeter.ac.uk

11 Marjan Nadim works as a researcher at Institute for Social Research in Oslo, 12 Norway, and is about to finish a PhD in Sociology at the University of Oslo, 13 examining how second-generation families in Norway organise and make 14 sense of paid work and childcare. Her research interests include issues 15 related to gender and gender equality, integration, and the second genera-16 tion. e-mail: marjan.nadim@socialresearch.no.

17 Bindi Shah b.shah@soton.ac.uk

18 Bryan S. Turner is Presidential Professor of Sociology at the Graduate Center 19 CUNY and Professorial Fellow at the Australian Catholic University. His 20 recent publications include Religion and Modern Society (2011) and The 21 Religious and the Political (2013). His current research includes a compara-
22 tive study of the Shari'a, and a study of 'successful societies' involving a 23 comparison of de-industrialization in Detroit and Melbourne. e-mail:
24 bturner@gc.cuny.edu

25 Raf Vanderstraeten is Professor of Sociology at Ghent University (Belgium)
26 and Fellow at the Helsinki Collegium for Advanced Studies, University of 27 Helsinki (Finland). He works in the fields of sociological theory, sociology of 28 knowledge, sociology of religion and sociology of education. In his recent 29 work, he focuses on the differentiation of scientific disciplines, especially on 30 changing patterns of communication within scientific communities. He has 31 published articles in various journals including British Journal of Sociology,
32 Journal of Classical Sociology, Minerva, Social Science History, Sociology, 33 Soziale Welt, The European Journal of Social Theory, and Zeitschrift für 34 Soziologie. He is currently the director of the Centre for Social Theory at 35 Ghent University. e-mail: Raf.Vanderstraeten@UGent.be.